A DOUBLE BILL!

EKSPERIMENT (ESTONIA)

Exploring the World

Recommended audience: Grades 7-10

The play that the EKSPERIMENT troupe from Estonia will present couldn't be more fitting. It reflects the long journey these teenaged actors will make to Canada and it mirrors the story they want to tell.

The play is based on the text of an Estonian writer, but all of the movement and the expression comes from the young actors. They've created the choreography and rhythms to tell us how they feel. They are ready to go out and explore the world, but they are also fearful about what they will encounter there.

The play is redolent with the salty air of a Baltic seashore – the scent of home – and the ever-present fishing nets and ropes so familiar in their lives. While the teens love their homes, they still think about leaving and exploring beyond the borders of their country. The actors share the adventure and curiosity in their souls, along with the suspicion, fear, and hesitation that hold them back. In the end, there is always the hope that the journey will be worth it and that they will grow.

The Company

The troupe's Artistic Director is Külli Täht, a teacher of Estonian language and literature. Unlike many other children's theatre troupes, Külli's actors gather at the end of their school day to work on their plays and their voice, physical and improvisation skills.

"On stage we are one. We have a voice-body-soul symbiosis. We breathe as one. We perceive each other. We feel the rhythms of our own bodies."

TEATRO LA FRAGUA (THE FORGE) CUBA

Para ser mejores (To Be Better)

Recommended audience: Grades 7-10

Cuba's Teatro la Fragua children's troupe will pay homage to 19th century Cuban writer, poet and philosopher, José Martí, with their play Para ser mejores (To Be Better). Havana-born Martí was known as the "Apostle of Cuban Independence" during the time that Cuba was pushing away from Spain, and he wrote many texts for children.

The Company

Teatro La Fragua is a children's theatre network that extends throughout Central America and the Caribbean. Its name means "The Forge" and the youth companies literally forge a national and cultural identity in environments where poverty is a day-to-day reality. Theatre is their medium.

The troupe of child actors arriving from Cuba are all 12 years old and have never travelled outside of their homeland before. A collective of Cuban artists is currently raising money for their trip through art sales.

Para ser mejores presents several short vignettes in a theatrical game that speaks to the universal values of love for human kind and for Nature, friendship, solidarity, equality, intelligence and freedom.

DIVADLO VYDÝCHÁNO (CZECH REPUBLIC)

Jednou v Chelmu (Once in Chelm)

Recommended audience: Grades 7-10

The Polish town of Chelm provides the backdrop for this charming story of two misfits and their love for each other. It is looking like these two square pegs, Lemel and Tzipa, might never find love, or a partner in life, until their parents engage a matchmaker who brings them together. It is love at first sight.

After he is engaged to Tzipa, Lemel embarks on a journey of discovery to find his vocation. Unfortunately, our simple and kind-hearted hero is cheated and tricked by many along the way. In the end, he returns to his love and is just plain happy.

Once in Chelm treats us to a delightful array of Jewish music and customs, and Israeli dancing. For reasons unknown, Chelm is regularly portrayed as the "town of fools" in Eastern European Jewish folklore.

The Company

Divadlo Vydýcháno (Theatre Breathed Up) is a theatre group devoted to cultivating both the individual actor's talent and the group's skills in collaboration and co-operation. Their repertoire of children's stories and fairy tales is a regular feature of theatre festivals across Europe. Once in Chelm is a relatively new production written by the Director.
